Introduction

Why I Love the Canons of Dort

by Rev. Daniel R. Hyde

I don't remember anymore the precise moment I encountered the Canons of Dort. I do remember it was while in college in my dorm's computer lab. More importantly, I remember instantly falling in love with the Canons as I discovered the roots of my faith and of the holy catholic church. As my mind was enlightened with truth, my heart was enlivened with awe, humility, and praise to the Triune God who saved me by his grace.

As a pastor I've taken many notes on the beloved Canons, read anything I could find on them, taught them to inquirers in my congregation, to my church family in Sunday school settings, and even used them as guides for preaching the doctrines of the Word. Knowing the four hundredth anniversary of this 1618–19 Synod (a gathering of church and political leaders from across Europe in the Dutch town of Dordrecht) was around the corner, I wanted to put something together like I had done several years previous for another Reformation confession of faith: the Belgic Confession. I'm grateful to The Davenant Institute for deciding to partner with me in bringing my study and research to print. As this book has its public "launch" (and hopefully not a push over the precipice!), let me give you four reasons why I love the Canons of Dort, which encapsulate what Grace Worth Fighting For is all about.

First and foremost, I love the Canons of Dort because they express God's grace to sinners. When you read them for yourself you'll see that they do not merely describe from afar static doctrines; they profess God's personal grace to personal sinners. One of the reasons I wrote this book is because of how prevalent these caricatures and misperceptions of "Calvinism" are in evangelical Christian circles. I cannot tell you how often I get asked by visitors to our congregation or by members trying to explain to their friends, what is "predestination" all about? I like to encourage them to take a step back and talk about the God of predestination so that it is personal. As you read the Canons for yourself, you'll see that, contrary to populist opinion, "double predestination" (which itself needs to be carefully defined) is not behind every corner, controlling every other doctrine. You'll see that predestination is not a central dogma to the Reformed theological system; it's there, but only because God reveals it as an expression of his grace.

Second, I love the Canons of Dort because they express and apply catholic theology to a particular controversy. In other words, if you come to the Canons having just read your daily devotional of Boettner, Hoeksema, Sproul, or Steele & Thomas hoping for confirmation of these exponents of “the Reformed view” of one of the petals on the TULIP, you’re in for a few surprises. Do you think that the Reformed made a clean break with medieval versions of election and reprobation? Think again. Do you think “Christ died for the elect, period,” is the Reformed view of so-called “limited atonement?” Keep reading. What about the Canons’ article on “irresistible grace?” The Reformed at the time of Dort abhorred that word “irresistible.” “Once saved, always saved” is the Reformed view on perseverance, right? Like I said; surprises abound. This is one of the areas I’ve grown in over the years as I’ve read, studied, and taught through the so-called “doctrines of grace.” It seems human nature gravitates to extremes, as we see in our national political discourse; sadly we do the same in our theology. The Canons, as the definition of various aspects of God’s grace, ironically lay out a catholic and consensus view and not fire-breathing, cage-phase Calvinism.

“What you’ll see as you read through the Canons is that real men wrote them. These were men who were professors of young, immature students; men who pastored in rural, lowly educated parishes.”

Third, I love the Canons of Dort because they express a realistic view of human nature and of the Christian life. Like I said above, the Canons are no mere 35,000-foot view of philosophical Calvinism; they’re all about a personal God’s grace to persons. What you’ll see as you read through them is that real men wrote them. These were men who were professors of young, immature students; men who pastored in rural, lowly educated parishes; men who pastored in cities where the slogan could very well have been, “What happens in Dordrecht, stays in Dordrecht.” The Canons are full of pastoral insight: there are all kinds of people who respond in all kinds of ways to God's grace in Jesus Christ. Even within the community of Christians, there are strong believers, there are weak believers, there are those prone to stumble and fall, and everything in between. Because of our variegated human experience of sin and grace, pastors are not to deal with everyone in precisely the same way. This theme comes up again and again in the Canons' discussion of assurance of faith.

Fourth, I love the Canons of Dort because they express so much more than TULIP. "Don't you believe in the TULIP thing?" That's one of the common things I hear when I tell people I'm a Reformed pastor. TULIP is the acronym for Total depravity, Unconditional election, Limited atonement, Irresistible grace, and Perseverance (or Preservation) of the saints. It's supposedly what the Synod of Dort decided on contra the Arminians. Yet, this is a nineteenth-century American over-simplification, actually re-orders the order of the Canons, and would've been an impossible acronym for a seventeenth-century Dutchman since his word for "tulip" would have been tulp. As I've said, the Canons of Dort are about God's grace, not detached and distant doctrines. And even when they discuss those doctrines as aspects of God's amazing grace, they do so in well-rounded biblical ways, mindful of the catholic Christian past, and with plenty of practical application throughout. For example, if you read a modern introduction to TULIP you're more than likely not going to read anything about the practical problem predestination poses to the Christian mom and dad whose infant daughter or son has just died. But the Canons do!

I love the Canons of Dort. I love them for proclaiming who God is: gracious. I love them for being catholic and not insular. I love them for being expressions of real men to me, a really sinful man. I love them because they don't give me just five petals from a tulip flower; they take me to the roots of those petals.

I encourage you to take up and read the Canons of Dort and be enraptured in the love (even again) of the God they proclaim.

The First Main Point of Doctrine

Divine Election and Reprobation

The Judgment Concerning Divine Predestination Which the Synod Declares to Be in Agreement with the Word of God and Accepted Till Now in the Reformed Churches, Set Forth in Several Articles

Article 1: God's Right to Condemn All People

As all men have sinned in Adam¹, lie under the curse, and are deserving of eternal death,² God would have done no injustice by leaving them all to perish and delivering them over to condemnation on account of sin,³ according to the words of the apostle: "that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may be brought under the judgment of God" (Rom 3:19). And: "for all have sinned, and fall short of the glory of God" (Rom 3:23). And: "For the wages of sin is death" (Rom 6:23).

Article 2: The Manifestation of God's Love

But in this the love of God was manifested, that He "sent His only begotten Son into the world, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life" (1 Jn 4:9; Jn 3:16).

Article 3: The Preaching of the Gospel

And that men may be brought to believe, God mercifully sends the messengers of these most joyful tidings¹ to whom He will and at what time He pleases; by whose ministry men are called to repentance and faith in Christ crucified.² "How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach except they are sent?" (Rom 10:14-15).

Article 4: A Twofold Response to the Gospel

The wrath of God abides upon those who believe not this gospel.¹ But such as receive it² and embrace Jesus the Savior by a true and living faith³ are by Him delivered from the wrath of God and from destruction, and have the gift of eternal life conferred upon them.⁴

¹ Jn 3:36; Rom 1:18, 2:5; ² Jn 1:12-13; ³ HC 21 ⁴ Rom 10:9

Article 5: The Sources of Unbelief and of Faith

The cause or guilt of this unbelief as well as of all other sins is no way in God,¹ but in man himself;² whereas faith in Jesus Christ and salvation through Him is the free gift of God, as it is written: "For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God" (Eph 2:8). Likewise: "For to you it has been granted on behalf of Christ, not only to believe in him..." (Php 1:29).

¹ Jas 1:13, 17; 1 Jn 1:5; ² Heb 4:6

Article 6: God's Eternal Decision

That some receive the gift of faith from God, and others do not receive it, proceeds from God's eternal decree.¹ "Known to God from eternity are all His works" (Acts 15:18). "Who works all things according to the counsel of His will" (Eph 1:11). According to which decree He graciously softens the hearts of the elect, however obstinate, and inclines them to believe; while He leaves the non-elect in His just judgment to their own wickedness and obstinacy.² And herein is especially displayed the profound, the merciful, and at the same time the righteous discrimination between men equally involved in ruin; or that decree of election and reprobation, revealed in the Word of God, which, though men of perverse, impure, and unstable minds wrest it to their own destruction, yet to holy and pious souls affords unspeakable consolation.

Article 7: Election

Election is the unchangeable purpose of God, whereby, before the foundation of the world,¹ He has out of mere grace, according to the sovereign good pleasure of His own will,² chosen from the whole human race, which had fallen through their own fault from their primitive state of uprightness into sin and destruction, a certain number of persons to redemption in Christ, whom He from eternity appointed the Mediator and Head of the elect and the foundation of salvation. This elect number, though by nature neither better nor more deserving than others, but with them involved in one common misery, God has decreed to give to Christ to be saved by Him,³ and effectually to call⁴ and draw them⁵ to His communion by His Word and Spirit; to bestow upon them true faith, justification, and sanctification; and having powerfully preserved them in the fellowship of His Son,⁶ finally to glorify them⁷ for the demonstration of His mercy, and for the praise of the riches of His glorious grace; as it is written: "Just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him, in love having predestined us to adoption as sons by Jesus Christ to Himself, according to the good pleasure of His will, to the praise of the glory of His grace, by which He bestowed grace upon us in the Beloved" (Eph 1:4-6). And elsewhere: "Whom He predestined, these He also called, and whom He called, these He also justified; and whom He justified, these He also glorified" (Rom 8:30).

¹ Eph 1:4; ² Eph 1:11; ³ Jn 17:2; ⁴ 1 Cor 1:9; ⁵ Jn 6:37, 44; ⁶ Jn 17:12; ⁷ Jn 17:24

Article 8: A Single Decision of Election

There are not various decrees of election, but one and the same decree respecting all those who shall be saved,¹ both under the Old² and New Testament;³ since the Scripture declares the good pleasure, purpose, and counsel of the divine will to be one, according to which He has chosen us from eternity, both to grace and to glory, to salvation and to the way of salvation, which He has ordained that we should walk therein.

¹ Rom 8:28-30; ² Dt 7:7, 9:6; ³ Eph 1:4-5, 2:10

Article 9: Election Not Based on Foreseen Faith

This election was not founded upon foreseen faith and the obedience of faith, holiness, or any other good quality or disposition in man, as the prerequisite, cause, or condition on which it depended; but men are chosen to faith and to the obedience of faith, holiness, etc.¹ Therefore election is the fountain of every saving good, from which proceed faith, holiness, and the other gifts of salvation, and finally eternal life itself, as its fruits and effects, according to the testimony of the apostle: "He chose us [not because we were, but]...that we should be holy and without blame before Him in love" (Eph 1:4).

¹ Rom 8:29-30; Eph 2:9-10, 5:25-29

Article 10: Election Based on God's Good Pleasure

The good pleasure of God is the sole cause of this gracious election; which does not consist herein that out of all possible qualities and actions of men God has chosen some as a condition of salvation, but that He was pleased out of the common mass of sinners to adopt some certain persons¹ as a peculiar people to Himself, as it is written: "For the children not yet being born, nor having done any good or evil...it was said to her [namely, to Rebekah], 'the elder shall serve the younger.' Even as it is written, 'Jacob I have loved, but Esau I have hated'" (Rom 9:11-13).² "And as many as had been appointed to eternal life believed" (Acts 13:48).

Article 11: Election Unchangeable

And as God Himself is most wise, unchangeable, omniscient, and omnipotent, so the election made by Him can neither be interrupted nor changed, recalled, or annulled;¹ neither can the elect be cast away, nor their number diminished.²

¹ Rom 8:29-30; ² Jn 6:37, 10:28

Article 12: The Assurance of Election

The elect in due time, though in various degrees and in different measures, attain the assurance of this their eternal and unchangeable election, not by inquisitively prying into the secret and deep things of God,¹ but by observing in themselves with a spiritual joy and holy pleasure² the infallible fruits of election pointed out in the Word of God, such as, a true faith in Christ,³ filial fear of God,⁴ a godly sorrow for sin,⁵ a hungering and thirsting after righteousness,⁶ etc.

¹ Dt 29:29; ² Rom 4:18-5:2, 5; ³ 1 Cor 2:10-11; ⁴ 2 Cor 13:5; ⁵ 2 Cor 7:10; ⁶ Mt 5:6

Article 13: The Fruit of This Assurance

The sense and certainty of this election afford to the children of God additional matter for daily humiliation before Him, for adoring the depth of His mercies, for cleansing themselves,¹ and rendering grateful returns of ardent love to Him who first manifested so great love towards them.² The consideration of this doctrine of election is so far from encouraging remissness in the observance of the divine commands or from sinking men in carnal security, that these, in the just judgment of God, are the usual effects of rash presumption or of idle and carelessness with the grace of election, in those who refuse to walk in the ways of the elect.

¹ 1 Jn 3:3, 7-10; ² 1 Jn 4:19

Article 14: Teaching Election Properly

As the doctrine of divine election by the most wise counsel of God was declared by the prophets, by Christ Himself, and by the apostles, and is clearly revealed in the Scriptures both of the Old and the New Testament, so it is still to be published in due time and place in the Church of God,¹ for which it was peculiarly designed, provided it be done with reverence, in the spirit of discretion and piety,² for the glory of God's most holy Name,³ and for enlivening and comforting His people,⁴ without vainly attempting to investigate the secret ways of the Most High.⁵

¹ Acts 20:27; ² Rom 12:3; ³ Rom 11:33-36; ⁴ Heb 6:17-18; ⁵ Dt 29:29; Job 36:23-26; 1 Cor 4:6

Article 15: Reprobation

What peculiarly tends to illustrate and recommend to us the eternal and unmerited grace of election is the express testimony of sacred Scripture that not all, but some only, are elected,¹ while others are passed by in the eternal decree; whom God, out of His sovereign,² most just, irreprehensible, and unchangeable good pleasure, has decreed to leave in the common misery into which they have willfully plunged themselves,³ and not to bestow upon them saving faith and the grace of conversion; but, permitting them in His just judgment to follow their own ways,² at last, for the declaration of His justice, to condemn and punish them forever, not only on account of their unbelief, but also for all their other sins. And this is the decree of reprobation, which by no means makes God the Author of sin (the very thought of which is blasphemy), but declares Him to be an awful, irreprehensible, and righteous Judge and Avenger thereof.

¹ Rom 9:6; ² Rom 9:10-23; ³ Rom 9:22; 1 Pt 2:8; ² Acts 14:16

Article 16: Responses to the Teaching of Reprobation

Those in whom a living faith in Christ,¹ and assured confidence of soul, peace of conscience, an earnest endeavor after filial obedience,² a glorying in God through Christ,³ is not as yet strongly felt, and who nevertheless make use of the means which God has appointed for working these graces in us, ought not to be alarmed at the mention of reprobation, nor to rank themselves among the reprobate, but diligently to persevere in the use of means, and with ardent desires devoutly and humbly to wait for a season of richer grace. Much less cause to be terrified by the doctrine of reprobation have they who, though they seriously desire to be turned to God, to please Him only, and to be delivered from the body of death,⁴ cannot yet reach that measure of holiness and faith to which they aspire;⁵ since a merciful God has promised that He will not quench the smoking flax, nor break the bruised reed.⁶ But this doctrine is justly terrible⁷ to those who, regardless of God and of the Savior Jesus Christ, have wholly given themselves up to the cares of the world⁸ and the pleasures of the flesh, so long as they are not seriously converted to God.

¹ Jas 2:26; HC 21; ² 2 Cor 1:12; ³ Rom 5:11; Php 3:3; ⁴ Rom 7:24; ⁵ Rom 7:13-23; ⁶ Isa 42:3; Mt 12:20; ⁷ Heb 12:29; ⁸ Mt 13:22

Article 17: The Salvation of the Infants of Believers

Since we are to judge of the will of God from His Word, which testifies that the children of believers are holy,¹ not by nature, but in virtue of the covenant of grace, in which they together with the parents are comprehended, godly parents ought not to doubt the election and salvation of their children whom it pleases God to call out of this life in their infancy.²

Article 18: The Proper Attitude Toward Election and Reprobation

To those who murmur at the free grace of election and the just severity of reprobation we answer with the apostle: "But indeed, O man, who are you to reply against God?" (Rom 9:20),¹ and quote the language of our Savior: "Is it not lawful for Me to do what I wish with My own things?" (Mt 20:15). And therefore, with holy adoration of these mysteries, we exclaim in the words of the apostle: "Oh, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are His judgments and His ways past finding out! 'For who has known the mind of the Lord? Or who has become His counselor? Or who has first given to Him and it shall be repaid unto him again?' For of Him and through Him and to Him are all things, to whom be glory forever! Amen." (Rom 11:33-36).

Rejection of Errors

The true doctrine concerning election and reprobation having been explained, the Synod rejects the errors of those:

Paragraph 1

Who teach: That the will of God to save those who would believe and would persevere in faith and in the obedience of faith is the whole and entire decree of election, and that nothing else concerning this decree has been revealed in God's Word. For these deceive the simple and plainly contradict the Scriptures, which declare that God will not only save those who will believe, but that He has also from eternity chosen certain particular persons to whom, above others, He will grant in time, both faith in Christ and perseverance; as it is written "I have revealed Your name to the men whom You have given Me out of the world" (Jn 17:6), and "as many as had been appointed to eternal life believed" (Acts 13:48). And "He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him" (Eph 1:4).

Paragraph 2

Who teach: That there are various kinds of election of God unto eternal life: the one general and indefinite, the other particular and definite; and that the latter in turn is either incomplete, revocable, non-decisive, and conditional, or complete, irrevocable, decisive, and absolute. Likewise: That there is one election unto faith and another unto salvation, so that election can be unto justifying faith, without being a decisive election unto salvation. For this is a fancy of men's minds, invented regardless of the Scriptures, whereby the doctrine of election is corrupted, and this golden chain of our salvation is broken: "Whom He predestined, these He also called, and whom He called, these He also justified; and whom He justified, these He also glorified" (Rom 8:30).

Paragraph 3

Who teach: That the good pleasure and purpose of God, of which Scripture makes mention in the doctrine of election, does not consist in this, that God chose certain persons rather than others, but in this, that He chose out of all possible conditions (among which are also the works of the law), or out of the whole order of things, that act of faith which from its very nature is undeserving, as well as its incomplete obedience, as a condition of salvation, and that He would graciously consider this in itself as a complete obedience and count it worthy of the reward of eternal life. For by this injurious error the pleasure of God and the merits of Christ are made of none effect, and men are drawn away by useless questions from the truth of gracious justification and from the simplicity of Scripture, and this declaration of the apostle is charged as untrue: "who has saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace which was given to us in Christ Jesus before time began" (2 Tim 1:9).

Paragraph 4

Who teach: That in the election unto faith this condition is beforehand demanded that man should use the light of nature aright, be pious, humble, meek, and fit for eternal life, as if on these things election were in any way dependent. For this savors of the teaching of Pelagius, and is opposed to the doctrine of the apostle when he writes: "Among whom also we all once conducted ourselves in the lust of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and were by nature children of wrath, just as the others. But God, who is rich in mercy, because of His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead in trespasses, made us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved), and raised us up together, and made us sit together in the heavenlies in Christ Jesus, that in the ages to come He might show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us in Christ Jesus. For by grace you have been saved, through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest anyone should boast" (Eph 2:3-9).

Paragraph 5

Who teach: That the incomplete and non-decisive election of particular persons to salvation occurred because of a foreseen faith, conversion, holiness, godliness, which either began or continued for some time; but that the complete and decisive election occurred because of foreseen perseverance unto the end in faith, conversion, holiness, and godliness; and that this is the gracious and evangelical worthiness, for the sake of which he who is chosen is more worthy than he who is not chosen; and that therefore faith, the obedience of faith, holiness, godliness, and perseverance are not fruits of the unchangeable election unto glory, but are conditions which, being required beforehand, were foreseen as being met by those who will be fully elected, and are causes without which the unchangeable election to glory does not occur. This is repugnant to the entire Scripture, which constantly inculcates this and similar declarations: Election is "not of works but of Him who calls" (Rom 9:11). "And as many as had been appointed to eternal life believed" (Acts 13:48). "Just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him" (Eph 1:4). "You did not choose Me, but I chose you and appointed you that you should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit shall remain, that whatever you ask the Father in My name He may give you" (Jn 15:16). "And if by grace, then it is no longer of works" (Rom 11:6). "In this is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (1 Jn 4:10).

Paragraph 6

Who teach: That not every election unto salvation is unchangeable, but that some of the elect, any decree of God notwithstanding, can yet perish and do indeed perish. By this gross error they make God be changeable, and destroy the comfort which the godly obtain out of the firmness of their election, and contradict the Holy Scripture, which teaches that the elect can not be led astray (Mt 24:24), that Christ does not lose those whom the Father gave him (Jn 6:39), and that God also glorified those whom he foreordained, called, and justified (Rom 8:30).

Paragraph 7

Who teach: That there is in this life no fruit and no consciousness of the unchangeable elect to glory, nor any certainty, except that which depends on a changeable and uncertain condition. For not only is it absurd to speak of an uncertain certainty, but also contrary to the experience of the saints, who by virtue of the consciousness of their election rejoice with the apostle and praise this favor of God; who according to Christ's admonition rejoice with his disciples that their names are written in heaven (Lk 10:20); who also place the consciousness of their election over against the fiery darts of the devil, asking: "Who shall bring a charge against God's elect?" (Rom 8:33).

Paragraph 8

Who teach: That God, simply by virtue of His righteous will, did not decide either to leave anyone in the fall of Adam and in the common state sin and condemnation, or to pass anyone by in the communication of grace which is necessary for faith and conversion. For this is firmly decreed: "He has mercy on whom He wills, and whom He wills He hardens" (Rom 9:18). And also this: "It has been given to you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given" (Mt 13:11). Likewise: "I thank You, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that You have hidden these things from the wise and prudent and have revealed them to babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Your sight" (Mt 11:25-26).

Paragraph 9

Who teach: That the reason why God sends the gospel to one people rather than to another is not merely and solely the good pleasure of God, but rather the fact that one people is better and worthier than another to which the gospel is not communicated. For this Moses denies, addressing the people of Israel as follows: "Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the LORD your God, also the earth with all that is in it. The LORD delighted only in your fathers to love them; and He chose their descendants after them, you above all peoples, as it is this day" (Dt 10:14-15). And Christ said: "Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes" (Mt 11:21).

Second Head of Doctrine

The Death of Christ, and the Redemption of Men Thereby

Article 1: The Punishment Which God's Justice Requires

God is not only supremely merciful, but also supremely just.¹ And His justice requires (as He has revealed Himself in His Word) that our sins committed against His infinite majesty should be punished,² not only with temporal but with eternal punishments, both in body and soul; which we cannot escape, unless satisfaction be made to the justice of God.

¹ Ex 34:6-7; HC 11; BC 16; ² Rom 5:16; Gal 3:10

Article 2: The Satisfaction Made by Christ

Since, therefore, we are unable to make that satisfaction in our own persons, or to deliver ourselves from the wrath of God, He has been pleased of His infinite mercy to give His only begotten Son for our Surety,¹ who was made sin,² and became a curse for us and in our stead,³ that He might make satisfaction to divine justice on our behalf.⁴

¹ Jn 3:16; Rom 5:8; ² 2 Cor 5:21 ³ Gal 3:13; ⁴ HC 12-14

Article 3: The Infinite Value of Christ's Death

The death of the Son of God is the only and most perfect sacrifice and satisfaction for sin, and is of infinite worth and value, abundantly sufficient to expiate the sins of the whole world.²

¹ Heb 9:26, 28, 10:14; ² Jn 1:29, 4:42; 1 Jn 2:2

Article 4: Reasons for This Infinite Value

This death is of such infinite value and dignity because the person who submitted to it was not only truly and perfectly a holy man,¹ but also, the only begotten Son of God,² of the same eternal and infinite essence with the Father and the Holy Spirit, which qualifications were necessary to constitute Him a Savior for us; and, moreover, because it was attended with a sense of the wrath and curse of God due to us for sin.³

¹ Mt 1:23; Heb 4:15, 7:26; ² Jn 1:18; 1 Jn 4:9; ³ Mt 27:46

Article 5: The Mandate to Proclaim the Gospel to All

Moreover, the promise of the gospel is that whosoever believes in Christ crucified shall not perish, but have eternal life.¹ This promise, together with the command to repent and believe,² ought to be declared and published to all nations,² and to all persons promiscuously and without distinction, to whom God out of His good pleasure sends the gospel.

¹ Jn 3:16; 1 Cor 1:23; ² Acts 2:38, 16:31; ³ Mt 28:19

Article 6: Unbelief Man's Responsibility

And, whereas many who are called by the gospel¹ do not repent nor believe in Christ, but perish in unbelief, this is not owing to any defect or insufficiency in the sacrifice offered by Christ upon the cross, but is wholly to be imputed to themselves.²

¹ Mt 22:14; ² Ps 95:8-11; Mt 23:27; Heb 4:6

Article 7: Faith God's Gift

But as many as truly believe, and are delivered and saved from sin and destruction through the death of Christ,¹ are indebted for this benefit solely to the grace of God² given them in Christ from everlasting,³ and not to any merit of their own.⁴

¹ 2 Cor 5:18; Col 2:13-14; ² Eph 2:8; ³ 2 Tim 1:9; ⁴ Eph 2:9; 2 Tim 1:9; Titus 3:5

Article 8: The Saving Effectiveness of Christ's Death

For this was the sovereign counsel and most gracious will and purpose of God the Father that the quickening and saving efficacy of the most precious death of His Son should extend to all the elect,¹ for bestowing upon them alone the gift of justifying faith, thereby to bring them infallibly to salvation; that is, it was the will of God that Christ by the blood of the cross, whereby He confirmed the new covenant,² should effectually redeem out of every people, tribe, nation, and language,³ all those, and those only, who were from eternity chosen to salvation and given to Him by the Father; that He should confer upon them faith, which, together with all the other saving gifts of the Holy Spirit, He purchased for them by His death; should purge them from all sin,⁴ both original and actual, whether committed before or after believing; and having faithfully preserved them even to the end,⁵ should at last bring them, free from every spot and blemish,⁶ to the enjoyment of glory in His own presence forever.

¹ Mt 20:28; Jn 10:15, 17:9; Eph 5:25-27; ² Lk 22:20; Heb 8:6; ³ Jn 11:51-52; Rev 5:9; ⁴ 1 Jn 1:7; ⁵ Jn 10:28; ⁶ Eph 5:27

Article 9: The Fulfillment of God's Plan

This purpose, proceeding from everlasting love towards the elect, has from the beginning of the world to this day been powerfully accomplished, and will henceforward still continue to be accomplished, notwithstanding all the ineffectual opposition of the gates of hell;¹ so that the elect in due time may be gathered together into one,² and that there may always be a church composed of believers,³ the foundation of which is laid in the blood of Christ; which may steadfastly love and faithfully serve Him as its Savior (who, as a bridegroom for his bride, laid down His life for them upon the cross);⁴ and which may celebrate His praises here and through all eternity.

Rejection of Errors

The true doctrine having been explained, the Synod rejects the errors of those:

Who teach: That God the Father has ordained His Son to the death of the cross without a certain and definite decree to save any, so that the necessity, profitableness, and worth of what Christ merited by His death might have existed, and might remain in all its parts complete, perfect, and intact, even if the merited redemption had never in fact been applied to any person. For this doctrine tends to the despising of the wisdom of the Father and of the merits of Jesus Christ, and is contrary to Scripture. For thus says our Savior: "I lay down my life for the sheep...and I know them" (Jn 10:15,27). And the prophet Isaiah says concerning the Savior: "Yet it pleased the LORD to crush Him; He has put Him to grief. When You make His soul an offering for sin, He shall see His seed, He shall prolong His days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in His hand" (Isa 53:10). Finally, this contradicts the article of faith according to which we believe that there is a church of God.

Paragraph 2

Who teach: That it was not the purpose of the death of Christ that He should confirm the new covenant of grace through His blood, but only that He should acquire for the Father the mere right to establish with man such a covenant as He might please, whether of grace or of works. For this is repugnant to Scripture which teaches that "Jesus has become a guarantee of a better covenant...the new covenant" and that "it has no power at all while the testator lives" (Heb 7:22, 9:15,17).

Paragraph 3

Who teach: That Christ by His satisfaction merited neither salvation itself for any one, nor faith, whereby this satisfaction of Christ unto salvation is effectually appropriated; but that He merited for the Father only the authority or the perfect will to deal again with man, and to prescribe new conditions as He might desire, obedience to which, however, depended on the free will of man, so that it therefore might have come to pass that either none or all should fulfill these conditions. For these adjudge too contemptuously the death of Christ, in no way acknowledge that most important fruit or benefit thereby gained, and bring again out of hell the Pelagian error.

Paragraph 4

Who teach: That the new covenant of grace, which God the Father, through the mediation of the death of Christ, made with man, does not herein consist that we by faith, in as much as it accepts the merits of Christ, are justified before God and saved, but in the fact that God, having revoked the demand of perfect obedience of faith, regards faith itself and the obedience of faith, although imperfect, as the perfect obedience of the law, and does esteem it worthy of the reward of eternal life through grace. For these contradict the Scriptures, "being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, whom God set forth as a propitiation by His blood, through faith" (Rom 3:24-25). And these proclaim, as did the wicked Socinius, a new and strange justification of man before God, against the consensus of the whole church.

Paragraph 5

Who teach: That all men have been accepted unto the state of reconciliation and unto the grace of the covenant, so that no one is worthy of condemnation on account of original sin, and that no one shall be condemned because of it, but that all are free from the guilt of original sin. For this opinion opposes Scripture which teaches that we are by nature children of wrath (Eph 2:3).

Paragraph 6

Who use the difference between meriting and appropriating, to the end that they may instill into the minds of the careless and inexperienced this teaching that God, as far as He is concerned, has willed to apply to all equally the benefits gained by the death of Christ; and that, while some obtain the pardon of sin and eternal life, and others do not, this difference depends on their own free will, which joins itself to the grace that is offered without exception, and that it is not dependent on the special gift of mercy, which powerfully works in them, that they rather than others should appropriate unto themselves this grace. For these, while they pretend that they present this distinction in a sound sense, seek to instill into the people the destructive poison of Pelagianism.

Paragraph 7

Who teach: That Christ neither could die, nor needed to die, and also did not die, for those whom God loved in the highest degree and elected to eternal life, since these do not need the death of Christ. For they contradict the apostle, who declares, Christ "loved me and gave Himself for me" (Gal 2:20). Likewise: "Who shall bring a charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies. Who is he who condemns? It is Christ who died" (Rom 8:33-34), namely, for them; and the Savior who says: "I lay down my life for the sheep" (Jn 10:15). And: "This is My commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. Greater love has no one than this, than to lay down one's life for his friends" (Jn 15:12-13).

Third and Fourth Heads of Doctrine

The Corruption of Man, His Conversion to God, and the Manner Thereof

Article 1: The Effect of the Fall on Human Nature

Man was originally formed after the image of God.¹ His understanding was adorned with a true and saving knowledge of his Creator, and of spiritual things; his heart and will were upright, all his affections pure, and the whole man was holy.² But, revolting from God by the instigation of the devil and by his own free will,³ he forfeited these excellent gifts; and in the place thereof became involved in blindness of mind, horrible darkness, vanity, and perverseness of judgment; became wicked, rebellious, and obstinate in heart and will, and impure in his affections.⁴

¹ Gen 1:26-27; ² HC 6; ³ Gen 3:1-7; HC 9; ⁴ Rom 3:9-18; Eph 4:17-19

Article 2: The Spread of Corruption

Man after the fall begat children in his own likeness.¹ A corrupt stock produced a corrupt offspring.² Hence all the posterity of Adam, Christ only excepted,³ have derived corruption from their original parent,⁴ not by imitation, as the Pelagians of old asserted, but by the propagation of a vicious nature, in consequence of the just judgment of God.

¹ Gen 5:3; ² Job 14:4; Ps 51:7; ³ Heb 4:15; ⁴ Rom 5:12-19

Article 3: Total Inability

Therefore all men are conceived in sin, and are by nature children of wrath, incapable of saving good, prone to evil,¹ dead in sin,² and in bondage thereto;³ and without the regenerating grace of the Holy Spirit,⁴ they are neither able nor willing to return to God, to reform the depravity of their nature, or to dispose themselves to reformation.

¹ Gen 6:5; ² Eph 2:1, 3 ³ Jn 8:34; Rom 6:16-17; ⁴ Jn 3:3-6; Titus 3:5

Article 4: The Inadequacy of the Light of Nature

There remain, however, in man since the fall, the glimmerings of natural light, whereby he retains some knowledge of God, and natural things, and of the difference between good and evil, and shows some regard for virtue and for good outward behavior. But so far is this light of nature from being sufficient to bring him to a saving knowledge of God and to true conversion that he is incapable of using it aright even in things natural and civil. By no means, further, this light, such as it is, man in various ways renders wholly polluted and hinders in unrighteousness, which by doing he becomes inexcusable before God.¹

Article 5: The Inadequacy of the Law

In the same light are we to consider the law of the Decalogue, delivered by God to His peculiar people, the Jews, by the hands of Moses. For though it reveals the greatness of sin,¹ and more and more convinces man thereof, yet, as it neither points out a remedy nor imparts strength to extricate him from his misery,² but, being weak through the flesh,³ leaves the transgressor under the curse,⁴ and man cannot by this law obtain saving grace.

¹ Rom 3:19-20; Gal 3:19; ² Rom 7:10, 13; 2 Cor 3:6-7; ³ Rom 8:3; ⁴ Gal 10; ⁵ Rom 3:20; Gal 3:11

Article 6: The Saving Power of the Gospel

What, therefore, neither the light of nature nor the law could do, that God performs by the operation of the Holy Spirit¹ through the word or ministry of reconciliation;² which is the gospel concerning the Messiah, by means whereof it has pleased God to save such as believe,³ as well under the Old as under the New Testament.⁴

¹ Jn 3:1-8; ² 2 Cor 5:18-19; ³ 1 Cor 1:21; ⁴ Heb 4:2

Article 7: God's Freedom in Revealing the Gospel

This mystery of His will God reveals to but a small number under the Old Testament; under the New Testament (the distinction between various peoples having been removed¹) He reveals it to many. The cause of this dispensation is not to be ascribed to the superior worth of one nation above another, nor to their better use of the light of nature, but results wholly from the sovereign good pleasure² and unmerited love of God.³ Hence they to whom so great and so gracious a blessing is communicated,⁴ above their desert, or rather notwithstanding their demerits, are bound to acknowledge it with humble and grateful hearts, and with the apostle to adore, but in no wise curiously to pry into,⁵ the severity and justice of God's judgments displayed in others to whom this grace is not given.

¹ Rom 2:11; Gal 3:28; Eph 2:14; Col 3:11; ² Jer 9:23-24; Eph 1:9; ³ Dt 7:7-8; ⁴ Mt 11:26; ⁵ Dt 29:29; ⁶ Rom 11:22-23; Rev 16:7

Article 8: The Serious Call of the Gospel

As many as are called by the gospel are sincerely called. For God has most earnestly and truly declared in His Word what is acceptable to Him, namely, that those who are called should come unto Him.¹ He also seriously promises rest of soul and eternal life to all who come to Him² and believe.³

¹ Isa 55:1; Mt 22:4; Jn 6:37; Rev 22:17; ² Mt 11:28-29; ³ Php 1:29

Article 9: Human Responsibility for Rejecting the Gospel

It is not the fault of the gospel, nor of Christ offered therein, nor of God, who calls men by the gospel and confers upon them various gifts, that many who are called by the ministry of the Word refuse to come and be converted. The fault lies in themselves;¹ some of whom when called, regardless of their danger, reject the Word of life; others, though they receive it, do not allow it to make a lasting impression on their heart; therefore, their joy, arising only from a temporary faith, soon vanishes, and they fall away; while others choke the seed of the Word by perplexing cares and the pleasures of this world, and produce no fruit. This our Savior teaches in the parable of the sower.²

¹ Mt 11:20-24, 22:1-8, 23:3; ² Mt 13:1-23

Article 10: Conversion as the Work of God

But that others who are called by the gospel obey the call and are converted is not to be ascribed to the proper exercise of free will, whereby one distinguishes himself above others equally furnished with grace sufficient for faith and conversion (as the proud heresy of Pelagius maintains); but it must be wholly ascribed to God,¹ who, as He has chosen His own from eternity in Christ, so He calls them effectually in time,² confers upon them faith³ and repentance, rescues them from the power of darkness,⁴ and translates them into the kingdom of His own Son;⁵ that they may show forth the praises of Him who has called them out of darkness into His marvelous light,⁶ and may glory not in themselves but in the Lord,⁷ according to the testimony of the apostles in various places.

Article 11: The Holy Spirit's Work in Conversion

But when God accomplishes His good pleasure in his elect, or works in them true conversion, He not only causes the gospel to be externally preached to them, and powerfully illuminates their minds by His Holy Spirit,¹ that they may rightly understand and discern the things of the Spirit of God;² but by the efficacy of the same regenerating Spirit He pervades the inmost recesses of man;³ He opens the closed and softens the hardened heart,⁴ and circumcises that which was uncircumcised;⁵ infuses new qualities into the will, which, though heretofore dead, He quickens;⁶ from being evil, disobedient, and obstinate, He renders it good, obedient, and pliable; actuates and strengthens it, that like a good tree, it may bring forth the fruits of good actions.⁷

Article 12: Regeneration a Supernatural Work

And this is that regeneration so highly extolled in Scripture, that renewal,¹ new creation,² resurrection from the dead,³ making alive,⁴ which God works in us without our aid.⁵ But this is in no way effected merely by the external preaching of the gospel, by moral suasion, or such a mode of operation that, after God has performed

His part, it still remains in the power of man to be regenerated or not, to be converted or to continue unconverted; but it is evidently a supernatural work, most powerful, and at the same time most delightful, astonishing, mysterious, and ineffable; not inferior in efficacy to creation or the resurrection from the dead, as the Scripture inspired by the Author of this work declares; so that all in whose heart God works in this marvelous manner are certainly, infallibly, and effectually regenerated, and do actually believe.⁶ Whereupon the will thus renewed is not only actuated and influenced by God, but in consequence of this influence becomes itself active. Wherefore also man himself is rightly said to believe and repent by virtue of that grace received.

Article 13: The Incomprehensible Way of Regeneration

Believers in this life cannot fully comprehend the manner of this operation.¹ Nevertheless, they are satisfied to know and experience that by this grace of God they are enabled to believe with the heart and to love their Savior.²

¹ Jn 3:8; ² Rom 10:9

Article 14: The Way God Gives Faith

Faith is therefore to be considered as the gift of God,¹ not on account of its being offered by God to man, to be accepted or rejected at his pleasure, but because it is in reality conferred upon him, breathed and infused into him; nor even because God bestows the power or ability to believe, and then expects that man should by the exercise of his own free will consent to the terms of salvation and actually believe in Christ, but because He who works in man both to will and to do,² works in man both to will and to believe, and indeed He works all in all.

Article 15: Responses to God's Grace

God is under no obligation to confer this grace upon any; for how can He be indebted to one who had no previous gifts to bestow as a foundation for such recompense?¹ By no means, how can He be indebted to one who has nothing of his own but sin and falsehood?² He, therefore, who becomes the subject of this grace owes eternal gratitude to God,³ and gives Him thanks forever. Whoever is not made partaker thereof is either altogether regardless of these spiritual gifts and satisfied with his own condition, or is in no apprehension of danger, and vainly boasts the possession of that which he has not. Further, with respect to those who outwardly profess their faith and amend their lives, we are bound, after the example of the apostle, to judge and speak of them in the most favorable manner; for the secret recesses of the heart are unknown to us. And as to others who have not yet been called, it is our duty to pray for them to God, who calls the things that are not as if they were.⁴ But we are in no way to conduct ourselves towards them with haughtiness, as if we had made ourselves to differ.⁵

¹ Rom 11:35; ² Jer 7:4; Amos 6:1; Rom 14:10; ³ Lk 17:12-19; ⁴ Rom 4:17; ⁵ 1 Cor 4:7

Article 16: Regeneration's Effect

But as man by the fall did not cease to be a creature endowed with understanding and will, nor did sin which pervaded the whole race of mankind deprive him of the human nature, but brought upon him depravity and spiritual death;¹ so also this grace of regeneration does not treat men as senseless stocks and blocks, nor take away their will and its properties, or do violence thereto; but it spiritually quickens, heals, corrects, and at the same time sweetly and powerfully bends it, that where carnal rebellion and resistance formerly prevailed, a ready and sincere spiritual obedience begins to reign;² in which the true and spiritual restoration and freedom of our will consist.³ Wherefore, unless the admirable Author of every good work so deal with us,⁴ man can have no hope of being able to rise from his fall by his own free will, by which, in a state of innocence, he plunged himself into ruin.

¹ Gen 2:17; Eph 2:1; ² Acts 2:46-47; Rom 8:2; ³ Ps 51:12; ⁴ Php 2:13

Article 17: God's Use of Means in Regeneration

As the almighty operation of God whereby He brings forth and supports this our natural life does not exclude but requires the use of means by which God in His infinite mercy and goodness has chosen to exert His influence, so also the aforementioned supernatural operation of God by which we are regenerated in no way excludes or subverts the use of the gospel,¹ which the most wise God has ordained to be the seed of regeneration² and food of the soul.³ Wherefore, as the apostles and the teachers who succeeded them piously instructed the people concerning this grace of God,⁴ to His glory and to the abasement of all pride, and in the meantime, however, neglected not to keep them, by the holy admonitions of the gospel, under the influence of the Word, the sacraments, and discipline;⁵ so even now it should be far from those who give or receive instruction in the Church to presume to tempt God by separating what He of His good pleasure has most intimately joined together. For grace is conferred by means of admonitions; and the more readily we perform our duty, the more clearly this favor of God, working in us, usually manifest itself, and the more directly His work is advanced; to whom alone all the glory, both for the means and for their saving fruit and efficacy, is forever due. Amen.⁶

Rejection of Errors

The true doctrine having been explained, the Synod rejects the errors of those:

Paragraph 1

Who teach: That it cannot properly be said that original sin in itself suffices to condemn the whole human race or to deserve temporal and eternal punishment. For these contradict the apostle, who declares: "Therefore, just as through one man sin entered the world, and death through sin, and thus death spread to all men, because all sinned" (Rom 5:12). And: "For the judgment which came from one offense resulted in condemnation" (Rom 5:16). And "the wages of sin is death" (Rom 6:23).

Paragraph 2

Who teach: That the spiritual gifts or the good qualities and virtues, such as goodness, holiness, righteousness, could not belong to the will of man when he was first created, and that these, therefore, cannot have been separated therefrom in the fall. For such is contrary to the description of the image of God which the apostle gives in Ephesians 4:24, where he declares that it consists in righteousness and holiness, which undoubtedly belong to the will.

Paragraph 3

Who teach: That in spiritual death the spiritual gifts are not separate from the will of man, since the will in itself has never been corrupted, but only hindered through the darkness of the understanding and the irregularity of the affection; and that, these hindrances having been removed, the will can then bring into operation its natural powers, that is, that the will of itself is able to will and to choose, or not to will and not to choose, all manner of good which may be presented to it. This is an innovation and an error, and tends to elevate the powers of the free will, contrary to the declaration of the prophet: "The heart is deceitful above all things and beyond cure" (Jer 17:9); and of the apostle: "Among whom also we all once conducted ourselves in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and were by nature children of wrath, just as the others" (Eph 2:3).

Paragraph 4

Who teach: That the unregenerate man is not really nor utterly dead in sin, nor destitute of all powers unto spiritual good, but that he can yet hunger and thirst after righteousness and life, and offer the sacrifice of a contrite and broken spirit, which is pleasing to God. For these things are contrary to the express testimony of Scripture: "you who were dead in your trespasses and sins" (Eph 2:1,5). And: "every intent of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (Gen 6:5, 8:21). Moreover, to hunger and thirst for deliverance from misery and for life, and to offer unto God the sacrifice of a broken spirit, is peculiar to the regenerate and those that are called blessed (Ps 51:17; Mt 5:6).

Paragraph 5

Who teach: That the corrupt and natural man can so well use the common grace (by which they understand the light of nature), or the gifts still left him after the fall, that he can gradually gain by their good use a greater, that is, the evangelical or saving grace, and salvation itself; and that in this way God on His part shows Himself ready to reveal Christ unto all men, since He applies to all sufficiently and efficiently the means necessary to conversion. For both the experience of all ages and the Scriptures testify that this is untrue. "He declares His word to Jacob, His statutes His judgments to Israel. He has not dealt thus with any nation; and as for His judgments, they have not known them" (Ps 147:19-20). "who in past generations allowed all nations to walk in their own ways" (Acts 14:16). And: "Now when they had gone through Phrygia and the region of Galatia, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach the word in Asia. After they had come to Mysia, they tried to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus did not permit them" (Acts 16:6-7).

Paragraph 6

Who teach: That in the true conversion of man no new qualities, powers, or gifts can be infused by God into the will, and that therefore faith, through which we are first converted and because of which we are called believers, is not a quality or gift infused by God but only an act of man, and that it cannot be said to be a gift, except in respect of the power to attain to this faith. For thereby they contradict the Holy Scriptures, which declare that God infuses new qualities of faith, of obedience, and of the consciousness of His love into our hearts: "But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the LORD: I will put My law in their minds, and write it on their hearts" (Jer 31:33). And: "For I will pour water on him who is thirsty, and floods on the dry ground; I will pour My Spirit on your descendants, and My blessing on your offspring" (Isa 44:3). And: "the love of God has been poured out in our hearts by the Holy Spirit who was given to us" (Rom 5:5). This is also repugnant to the constant practice of the Church, which prays by the mouth of the prophet thus: "Restore me, and I will return" (Jer 31:18).

Paragraph 7

Who teach: That the grace whereby we are converted to God is only a gentle persuasion, or (as others explain it) that this is the noblest manner of working in the conversion of man, and that this manner of working, which consists in advising, is most in harmony with man's nature; and that there is no reason why this advising grace alone should not be sufficient to make the natural man spiritual; indeed, that God does not produce the consent of the will except through this manner of advising; and that the power of the divine working, whereby it surpasses the working of Satan, consists in this that God promises eternal benefits, while Satan promises only temporal good. But this is altogether Pelagian and contrary to the whole Scripture, which, besides this, teaches yet another and far more powerful and divine manner of the Holy Spirit's working in the conversion of man, as in Ezekiel: "I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you; I will take the heart of stone out of your flesh and give you a heart of flesh" (Ez 36:26).

Paragraph 8

Who teach: That God in the regeneration of man does not use His omnipotence to potently and infallibly bend man's will to faith and conversion; but that all the works of grace having been employed which God uses to convert man, man may yet so resist God and the Holy Spirit, when God intends man's regeneration and wills to regenerate him, and indeed that man often does so resist that he prevents entirely his regeneration, and that it therefore remains in man's power to be regenerated or not. For this is nothing less than the denial of all that efficiency of God's grace in our conversion, and the subjecting of the working of Almighty God to the will of man, which is contrary to the apostles, who teach that we believe according to the working of the strength of his might (Eph 1:19); and that God fulfills every desire of goodness and every work of faith with power (2 Th 1:11); and that "His divine power has given us all things that pertain to life and godliness" (2 Pt 1:3).

Paragraph 9

Who teach: That grace and free will are partial causes which together work the beginning of conversion, and that grace, in order of working, does not precede the working of the will; that is, that God does not efficiently help the will of man unto conversion until the will of man moves and determines to do this. For the ancient Church has long ago condemned this doctrine of the Pelagians according to the words of the apostle: "So then it is not of him who wills, nor of him who runs, but of God who shows mercy" (Rom 9:16). Likewise: "For who makes you differ from another? And what do you have that you did not receive? Now if you did indeed receive it" (1 Cor 4:7). And: "for it is God who works in you both to will and to do for His good pleasure" (Php 2:13).

Fifth Head of Doctrine

The Perseverance of the Saints

Article 1: The Regenerate Not Entirely Free from Sin

Those whom God, according to His purpose, calls to the communion of His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, and regenerates by the Holy Spirit, He also delivers from the dominion and slavery of sin,¹ though in this life He does not deliver them altogether from the body of sin and from the infirmities of the flesh.²

¹ Jn 8:34-36; Rom 6:17; ² Rom 7:21-24, 8:17-25

Article 2: The Believer's Reaction to Sins of Weakness

Hence spring forth the daily sins of infirmity,¹ and blemishes cleave even to the best works of the saints.² These are to them a perpetual reason to humiliate themselves before God and to flee for refuge to Christ crucified; to mortify the flesh³ more and more by the spirit of prayer and by holy exercises of piety;⁴ and to press forward to the goal of perfection,⁵ until at length, delivered from this body of death, they shall reign with the Lamb of God in heaven.⁶

¹ 1Jn 1:8; ² HC 62, 114; ³ Col 3:5; ⁴ 1 Tim 4:7; ⁵ Php 3:12, 14; ⁶ Rev 5:6,

Article 3: God's Preservation of the Converted

By reason of these remains of indwelling sin,¹ and also because the temptations of the world and of Satan,² those who are converted could not persevere in that grace if left to their own strength. But God is faithful,³ who, having conferred grace, mercifully confirms and powerfully preserves⁴ them therein, even to the end.⁵

¹ Rom 7:20; ² Eph 6:12, 16; ³ Cor 10:13; ⁴ Jn 10:28-30; Php 1:6; 1 Pt 1:5; Jude 24 ⁵ 1 Pt 1:9

Article 4: The Danger of True Believers' Falling into Serious Sins

Although the weakness of the flesh cannot prevail against the power of God,¹ who confirms and preserves true believers in a state of grace, yet converts are not always so influenced and moved by God that they cannot depart in some particular instances from the guidance of divine grace, and be seduced by the lusts of the flesh and obey them. Wherefore they must continually watch and pray,² lest they should be led into temptation.³ Which when they do not, they may be not only be carried away by the flesh, the world, and Satan⁴ into great and heinous sins; but they are sometimes drawn into these evils by the righteous permission of God. This, the lamentable fall of David,⁵ Peter,⁶ and other saints described in Holy Scripture, demonstrates.

¹ Eph 1:19; ² 1 Thes 5:6, 17; ³ Mt 26:41; ⁴ HC 127; ⁵ 2 Sam 11; ⁶ Mt 26

Article 5: The Effects of Such Serious Sins

By such enormous sins, however, they very highly offend God,¹ incur a deadly guilt, grieve the Holy Spirit,² interrupt the exercise of faith, very grievously wound their consciences,³ and sometimes for a while lose the sense of God's favor, until, when they change their course by serious repentance,⁴ the light of God's fatherly countenance again shines upon them.⁵

¹ 2 Sam 12; ² Eph 4:30; ³ Mt 26:69-75; ⁴ Ps 32:3-5, Ps 51 ⁵ Num 6:25; Jn 21:15-19

Article 6: God's Saving Intervention

But God,¹ who is rich in mercy,² according to His unchangeable purpose of election,³ does not wholly withdraw the Holy Spirit from His own people even in their grievous falls;⁴ nor does He allow them to proceed so far as to lose the grace of adoption⁵ and forfeit the state of justification,⁶ or to commit the sin unto death⁷ or against the Holy Spirit;⁸ nor does He permit them to be totally deserted and plunge themselves into everlasting destruction.⁹

Article 7: Renewal to Repentance

For in the first place, in these falls He preserves in them the incorruptible seed of regeneration¹ from perishing or being totally lost; and again, by His Word and Spirit He certainly and effectually renews them to repentance, to a sincere and godly sorrow for their sins,² that they may seek and obtain remission in the blood of the Mediator,³ may again experience the favor of a reconciled God, through faith adore His mercies, and henceforward more diligently work out their own salvation with fear and trembling.⁴

Article 8: The Certainty of This Preservation

Thus it is not in consequence of their own merits or strength, but of God's free mercy, that they neither totally fall from faith and grace nor continue and perish finally in their backslidings;¹ which, with respect to themselves is not only possible, but would undoubtedly happen; but with respect to God, it is utterly impossible, since His counsel cannot be changed¹ nor His promise fail; neither can the call according to His purpose be revoked,² nor the merit, intercession,³ and preservation of Christ⁴ be rendered ineffectual, nor the sealing of the Holy Spirit⁵ be frustrated or obliterated.

Article 9: The Assurance of This Preservation

Of this preservation of the elect to salvation and of their perseverance in the faith, true believers themselves may and do obtain assurance according to the measure of their faith, whereby they surely believe that they are and ever will continue true and living members of the Church,¹ and that they have the forgiveness of sins and life eternal.²

¹ Heb 10:19-23; HC 54; ² Rom 8:31-39; 2 Tim 4:8, 18

Article 10: The Ground of This Assurance

This assurance, however, is not produced by any peculiar revelation contrary to or independent of the Word of God, but springs from faith in God's promises, which He has most abundantly revealed in His Word for our comfort; from the testimony of the Holy Spirit, witnessing with our spirit that we are children and heirs of God;¹ and lastly, from a serious and holy desire to preserve a good conscience² and to perform good works. And if the elect of God were deprived of this solid comfort that they shall finally obtain the victory,³ and of this infallible pledge of eternal glory, they would be of all men the most miserable.⁴

¹ Rom 8:16-17; 1 Jn 3:1-2; ² Acts 24:16; ³ Rom 8:37; ⁴ 1 Cor 15:19

Article 11: Doubts Concerning This Assurance

The Scripture moreover testifies that believers in this life have to struggle with various carnal doubts, and that under grievous temptations they do not always feel this full assurance of faith and certainty of persevering. But God, who is the Father of all consolation,¹ does not suffer them to be tempted above that they are able, but will with the temptation make also the way of escape, that they may be able to endure it,² and by the Holy Spirit again inspires them with the comfortable assurance of persevering.³

¹ 2 Cor 1:3; ² 1 Co 10:13; ³ Rom 7-8

Article 12: This Assurance as an Incentive to Godliness

This certainty of perseverance, however, is so far from exciting in believers a spirit of pride, or of rendering them carnally secure, that on the contrary it is the real source of humility,¹ filial reverence,² true piety,³ patience in every tribulation,⁴ fervent prayers,⁵ constancy in suffering⁶ and in confessing the truth,⁷ and of solid rejoicing in God;⁸ so that the consideration of this benefit should serve as an incentive to the serious and constant practice of gratitude and good works,⁹ as appears from the testimonies of Scripture and the examples of the saints.¹⁰

Article 13: Assurance No Inducement to Carelessness

Neither does renewed confidence of persevering produce licentiousness or a disregard of piety in those who are recovered from backsliding; but it renders them much more careful and concerned to continue in the ways of the Lord,¹ which He has ordained that they who walk therein² may keep the assurance of persevering; lest, on account of their abuse of His fatherly kindness, God should turn away His gracious countenance from them³ (which is to the godly dearer than life,⁴ and the withdrawal of which is more bitter than death) and they in consequence thereof should fall into more grievous torments of conscience.

¹ Ps 51:12-19; ² Cor 7:10; ³ Eph 2:10; ⁴ Ps 63:3; Jer 33:5

Article 14: God's Use of Means in Perseverance

And as it has pleased God, by the preaching of the gospel, to begin this work of grace in us, so He preserves, continues, and perfects it by the hearing and reading of His Word,¹ by meditation thereon,² and by the exhortations, threatenings, and promises thereof,³ and by the use of the sacraments.⁴

Article 15: Contrasting Reactions to the Teaching of Perseverance

The carnal mind is unable to comprehend this doctrine of the perseverance of the saints and the certainty thereof, which God has most abundantly revealed in His Word, for the glory of His Name and the consolation of pious souls, and which He impresses upon the hearts of the believers. Satan abhors it, the world ridicules it, the ignorant and hypocritical abuse it, and the heretics oppose it. But the bride of Christ¹ has always most tenderly loved and constantly defended it as an inestimable treasure; and God, against whom neither counsel nor strength can prevail, will dispose her so to continue to the end. Now to this one God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, be honor and glory forever. Amen.²

The true doctrine having been explained, the Synod rejects the errors of those:

Paragraph 1

Who teach: That the perseverance of the true believers is not a fruit of election, or a gift of God gained by the death of Christ, but a condition of the new covenant which (as they declare) man before his decisive election and justification must fulfill through his free will. For the Holy Scripture testifies that this follows out of election, and is given the elect in virtue of the death, the resurrection, and the intercession of Christ: "What then? Israel has not obtained what it seeks; but the elect have obtained it, and the rest were blinded" (Rom 11:7). Likewise: "He who did not spare His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things? Who shall bring a charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies. Who is he who condemns? It is Christ who died, and furthermore is also risen, who is even at the right hand of God, who also makes intercession for us. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ" (Rom 8:32-35)?

Paragraph 2

Who teach: That God does indeed provide the believer with sufficient powers to persevere, and is ever ready to preserve these in him if he will do his duty; but that, though all things which are necessary to persevere in faith and which God will use to preserve faith are furnished to us, even then it ever depends on the pleasure of the will whether it will persevere or not. For this idea contains outspoken Pelagianism, and while it would make men free, it make them robbers of God's honor, contrary to the prevailing agreement of the evangelical doctrine, which takes from man all cause of boasting, and ascribes all the praise for this favor to the grace of God alone; and contrary to the apostle, who declares that it is God who "will also confirm you to the end, that you may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Cor 1:8).

Paragraph 3

Who teach: That the true believers and regenerate not only can fall from justifying faith and likewise from grace and salvation wholly and to the end, but indeed often do fall from this and are lost forever. For this conception makes powerless the grace of justification and regeneration, and the continued preservation by Christ, contrary to the expressed words of the apostle Paul: "While we were still sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, having now been justified by His blood, we shall be saved from wrath through Him" (Rom 5:8-9). And contrary to the apostle John: "Whoever has been born of God does not sin, for His seed remains in him; and he cannot sin, because he has been born of God" (1 Jn 3:9). And also contrary to the words of Jesus Christ: "And I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish; neither shall anyone snatch them out of My hand. My Father, who has given them to me, is greater than all; and no one is able to snatch them out of My Father's hand" (Jn 10:28-29).

Paragraph 4

Who teach: That true believers and regenerate can sin the sin unto death or against the Holy Spirit. Since the same apostle John, after having spoken in the fifth chapter of his first epistle, verses 16-17, of those who sin unto death and having forbidden to pray for them, immediately adds to this in verse 18: "We know that whoever is born of God does not sin [meaning a sin of that character]; but he who has been born of God keeps himself, and the wicked one does not touch him" (1 Jn 5:18).

Paragraph 5

Who teach: That without a special revelation we can have no certainty of future perseverance in this life. For by this doctrine the sure comfort of the true believers is taken away in this life, and the doubts of the papist are again introduced into the Church, while the Holy Scriptures constantly deduce this assurance, not from a special and extraordinary revelation, but from the marks proper to the children of God and from the very constant promises of God. So especially the apostle Paul: "nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom 8:39). And John declares: "Now he who keeps His commandments abides in Him, and He in him. And by this we know that He abides in us, by the Spirit whom He has given us" (1 Jn 3:24).

Paragraph 6

Who teach: That the doctrine of perseverance and the assurance of salvation from its own character and nature is a cause of indolence and is injurious to godliness, good morals, prayers, and other holy exercises, but that on the contrary it is praiseworthy to doubt. For these show that they do not know the power of divine grace and the working of the indwelling Holy Spirit. And they contradict the apostle John, who teaches the opposite with express words in his first epistle: "Beloved, now we are children of God; and it has not yet been revealed what we shall be, but we know that when He is revealed, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as He is pure" (1 Jn 3:2-3). Furthermore, these are contradicted by the example of the saints, both of the Old and the New Testament, who though they were assured of their perseverance and salvation, were nevertheless constant in prayers and other exercises of godliness.

Paragraph 7

Who teach: That the faith of those who believe for a time does not differ from justifying and saving faith except only in duration. For Christ Himself, in Matthew 13:20, Luke 8:13, and in other places, evidently notes, beside this duration, a threefold difference between those who believe only for a time and true believers, when He declares that the former receive the seed on stony ground, but the latter in the good ground or heart; that the former are without root, but the latter have a firm root; that the former are without fruit, but that the latter bring forth their fruit in various measure, with constancy and steadfastness.

Paragraph 8

Who teach: That it is not absurd that one having lost his first regeneration is again and even often born anew. For these deny by this doctrine the incorruptibleness of the seed of God, whereby we are born again; contrary to the testimony of the apostle Peter: For you have "been born again, not of corruptible seed but incorruptible" (1 Pt 1:23).

Paragraph 9

Who teach: That Christ has in no place prayed that believers should infallibly continue in faith. For the contradict Christ Himself, who says: "I have prayed for you, that your faith should not fail" (Lk 22:32), and the evangelist John, who declares that Christ has not prayed for the apostles only, but also for those who through their word would believe: "Holy Father, keep through Your those whom You have given Me," and "I do not pray that You should take them out of the world, but that You should keep them from the evil one" (Jn 17:11,15,20).

Conclusion

This is the clear, simple, and sincere declaration of the orthodox doctrine concerning the five articles which have been disputed in the Belgic Churches, and a rejection of the errors by which they have for some time been troubled. The Synod judges this doctrine to be drawn from the Word of God, and to be agreeable to the confession of the Reformed Churches. Whence it clearly appears that some, whom it by no means became, have violated all truth, equity, and charity, in wishing to persuade the public of the following perversion:

Namely, "That the doctrine of the Reformed Churches concerning predestination, with its associated points, by its own genius and necessary tendency, leads the minds of men away from all piety and religion; that it is an opiate administered by the flesh and the devil; the stronghold of Satan, where he lies in wait for all, and from which he wounds multitudes, and mortally pierces many with darts both of despair and security; that this same doctrine makes God the author of sin, unjust, tyrannical, hypocritical; that it is nothing more than interpolated Stoicism, Manicheism, Libertinism, Turcism; that it renders men carnally secure, since they are persuaded by it that nothing can hinder the salvation of the elect, let them live as they please; and, therefore, that they may safely perpetrate every species of the most atrocious crimes. And conversely that, in this Reformed doctrine of predestination, if the reprobate should even perform truly all the works of the saints, their obedience would not in the least contribute to their salvation; that this same doctrine teaches that God, by a mere arbitrary act of his will, without the least respect or view to any sin, has predestined the greatest part of the world to eternal damnation, and has created them for this very purpose; that in the same manner in which the election is the fountain and cause of faith and good works, reprobation is the cause of unbelief and impiety; that many children of the faithful are torn, guiltless, from their mothers' breasts, and tyrannically plunged into hell: so that neither baptism nor the prayers of the Church at their baptism can at all profit them." And they go on to suggest many other things of the same kind which the Reformed Churches not only do not acknowledge but detest with their whole soul.

Wherefore, this Synod of Dort, in the name of the Lord, entreats as many as reverently call upon the name of our Savior Jesus Christ to judge the faith of the Reformed Churches, not from the slander which on every side is heaped upon it, nor from the private expressions of a few among ancient and modern teachers, often dishonestly quoted, or corrupted and taken to a meaning quite foreign to their intention; but from the public confessions of the Churches themselves, and from this declaration of the orthodox doctrine, confirmed by the unanimous consent of all and each of the members of the whole Synod. Moreover, the Synod warns slanderers themselves to consider the terrible judgment of God which awaits them for bearing false witness against the confessions of so many Churches, for distressing the consciences of the weak, and for laboring to render suspect the society of the truly faithful.

Finally, this Synod exhorts all their brethren in the gospel of Christ to conduct themselves piously and religiously in handling this doctrine, both in the universities and churches; to direct it, as well in discourse as in writing, to the glory of the Divine name, to holiness of life, and to the consolation of afflicted souls; to regulate, by the Scripture, according to the analogy of faith, not only their sentiments, but also their language, and to abstain from all those phrases which exceed the limits necessary to be observed in ascertaining the genuine sense of the Holy Scriptures, and may furnish insolent sophists with a just pretext for violently assailing, or even vilifying, the doctrine of the Reformed Churches. May Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who, seated at the Father's right hand, gives gifts to men, sanctify us in the truth; bring to the truth those who err; shut the mouths of the slanderers of sound doctrine, and endow the faithful ministers of his Word with the spirit of wisdom and discretion, that all their discourses may tend to the glory of God, and the edification of those who hear them. Amen.
